To Whom it May Concern:

The Center for Continuing Education at Andrews University has partnered with The Connecting Link to offer graduate-level courses that support teachers in meeting their continuing education requirements. As part of the collaboration, Andrews University approves the faculty, syllabi, and course materials for all courses offered.

Andrews University's School of Education and The Connecting Link have partnered to offer graduate courses for educators. Andrews University retains full academic oversight of this program, including approval of faculty, syllabi, course materials, and assessments.

Credits earned through this partnership are degree-eligible graduate credits and may be applied toward an Andrews University graduate degree program.

Andrews University is fully compliant with NC-SARA (the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements) and is recognized as an approved participating institution. The University holds accreditation from the Higher Learning Commission, and the School of Education maintains all applicable programmatic accreditations and state approvals.

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact us at cce@andrews.edu or 1-800-471-6210 option 1.
